Attorney General Dawson Denounces 'System' In His Opening Address Today

Makes Plea For Better Roads and Schools; Opposes Coal Tonnage—Is Neutral on Pari-Mutuel Abolishment

BITTERLY FLAYS DEMOCRATIC PRESS OF LOUISVILLE

By Associated Press

PIKEVILLE, Ky., May 21.—Creation of a state highway commission composed of one member from each congressional district in the state, and one member from the state at large, serving without pay, was advocated here today by Charles I. Dawson, former attorney general, in the opening address of his campaign for the Republican nomination for governor.

Approval of any act abolishing pari-mutuel machines from race tracks in Kentucky also was promised by Mr Dawson in the event he becomes governor. He declared that if the general assembly passed a law repealing the act that he would sign it.

Creation of a non-partisan State Board of Education, appointed by the governor, also was advocated by Mr. Dawson. He also promised to aid the cause of education in Kentucky in the event he is elected.

Opposition to a tonnage tax on coal and a plea for assessment of all property also were presented by Mr. Dawson. He praised the State Board of Charities and Corrections and promised to retain the present body in the event of his election.

Mr. Dawson's speech, in part follows:

"That for many years a system has been operating in Kentucky, no person at all familiar with the facts will question, and to that System can be justly charged the failure of Kentucky to make the progress which its favorable location and boundless resources justify. That we may observe the workings of that System and its damning influence upon the progress of development of our state, we are not required to delve into ancient history. We need only recall its operation during the General Assembly of 1922.

Road Bond Issue Defeat

"When that session of the General Assembly convened, the people of Kentucky were demanding that some steps be taken to speedily complete the primary road system of the State, laid out by the General Assembly of 1920. At the direction of the Kentucky Good Roads Association, and with the backing of every civic organization in the State and the almost solid backing of the Republican membership of the General Assembly and of the Governor of the Commonwealth, I prepared a bill, submitting to the people of this State for their approval of a bond issue for fifty million dollars, for the purpose of constructing the primary road system, laid out by the act of 1920. It called for no additional taxation, but provided for the payment of interest on the bonds and their retirement at maturity out of revenues then available, and left an ample maintenance fund at the disposal of the state highway commission. Every safeguard possible was written into the bill to guarantee an honest expenditure of the money. The bill was introduced in both houses of the General Assembly, and it started on its journey through the legislative mill, freighted with the hopes of every forward-looking citizen of the Commonwealth. Every single Republican member of the General Assembly, with but two exceptions, favored it, at the outset it seemed that if the sentiment among the Democratic members was almost as equally as strong for its passage. But the System, which favors the expenditure of no public money unless it can be used for political advantage, cracked the party whip and demanded that the Democratic membership of the General Assembly should forget its people to the people of Kentucky, and respond to the plea of party expediency. The bill was defeated, and the people of Kentucky condemned to two more years of mud roads. Yes, there is a System in Kentucky, and that System defeated the submission of the fifty million dollar bond issue, and every one at all familiar with the workings of the last General Assembly knows that the commander-in-chief of the System in that notable fight was General Percy Haley, one of the group now seeking to prevent my nomination.

Finish Primary Road System

"The people of the State will not soon forget the attempt of the System, in 1922 through the Simmons Highway Bill, to make the Road Department of Kentucky an adjunct of the Democratic machine. General Haley and his satellites saw in the expenditure of millions of road funds an opportunity to perpetuate the System in power in Kentucky.

"In my judgment the most vital need of Kentucky today is the speedy completion of the primary road system laid out by the general assembly of 1920. With the annual revenues now available for highway construction, this system can not be completed with any reasonable length of time.

"Good roads mean inevitable better schools, better churches, increased wealth, better understanding among our citizens and a greater Kentucky. A comprehensive system of good roads in Kentucky, reaching and connected every county seat, would go a long way toward solving our rural school problem, our taxation problem, and toward wiping out those sectional jealousies and prejudices which in the past have done so much to retard the progress and development of the state. Every day lost in the completion of our road system means losses to our schools, loss in taxable wealth and delay in the development of our state. For those reasons I favor submitting to the people for their approval a bond issue of fifty million dollars, which, when used in connection with available Federal funds, it is estimated will be sufficient to complete the present primary system. The interest of this bond issue can be paid and the issue redeemed at maturity out of the annual road funds now available, without increasing taxes a single penny, and still leave each year a sufficient fund for maintenance purposes. A program calling for the expenditure of such a vast sum of money should have thrown around it every safeguard, not only against the dishonest and incompetent expenditure of money, but against any section or county or the state being discriminated against in its expenditure.

For Highway Commission

Accordingly if elected governor I will ask the same legislature which submits the bond issue to create a highway commission to have charge of the expenditure of the bond money, such composed commission of be of one member from each Congressional District and one member from the State-at-large, to be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, the membership to be equally divided between the two dominant political parties, and all whom shall serve without pay, and I will appoint on that commission men of such unquestioned ability and character that the people will know that they will get a dollar of value out of every dollar expended.

"As a further assurance that the money will be fairly spent and distributed, I will recommend that the bill submitting the bond issue to the people shall be apportioned and spent by the commission in the various counties of the State, one-third on the basis of population, one-third on the basis of primary road mileage, and one third on the basis of area of the respective counties, which is the same plan of

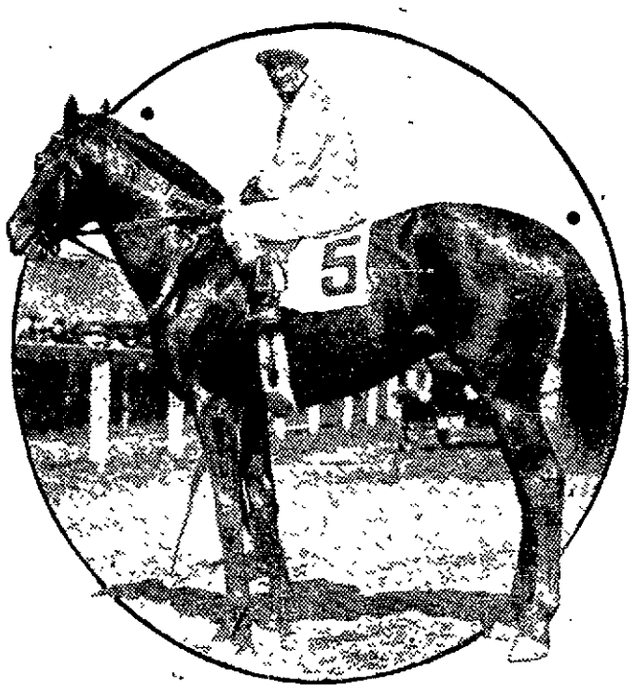
KENTUCKY DERBY WINNER



Zev, Harry F. Sinclair's brown colt—the horse that came back after finishing next to last in the $50.000 Preakness a week ago, Saturday entered the racing hall of fame when he won the forty-ninth Kentucky derby before a crowd of 75,000 persons, the greatest throng that ever witnessed a horse race in America. The little brown colt by The Finn-Miss Kearney, defeated twenty of the best three year olds in the nation, the largest field that ever started in the classic.

Reasons Why You Should Support The Community Chest Campaign

Reason No. 4

SCHOOL ATHLETICS

Every year educators are realizing more keenly the necessity of physical training as well as mental training for school children. And the most effective type of physical training, experience has shown, is through athletics into which enters the spirit of play and competition, thus winning the student's enthusiasm and interest.

Only very recently have athletics been recognized as an important factor in Middlesboro public schools, and only in the past year has there been a definite athletic organization and a concerted attempt to take part in all athletic games. This has been hampered by lack of an adequate athletic field for any sports and baseball and track both had to be abandoned.

The committee which framed the Community Chest budget recognized the lack of athletic provision in the schools here, and for this reason they inserted into the budget $2000 to be used for athletic development and to purchase an athletic field. With this money athletics can be carried on next year in a much more adequate and successful manner. This is a matter which should have the support of every parent and every public-spirited citizen in Middlesboro. Bear this in mind and help put the whole $17,000 budget over the top Friday morning.

MAN SLAIN IN IRVINE SATURDAY AFTER QUARREL

Tom Wallace, Brother State Treasurer, Killed by Prohibition Officer When Two Meet on Street—Both Men Fired

SLAIN MAN GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE FOR MURDER IN 1915

By Associated Press

LEXINGTON, May 21.—Motives for killing Tom Wallace, brother of state treasurer, James Wallace by David M. Mills, prohibition officer, in Irvine Saturday night was clarified by additional information received here today. Wills is in jail charged with murder. Feeling in Irvine is so strong that the chief of police there hustled Wills into an automobile and brought him here shortly after the shooting. It appears Wills had Wallace arrested charged with violation of the prohibition law. When the men met on the street Wallace is said to have called Wills obscene names. Each man emptied his gun but only one bullet took effect. Wallace died in half an hour.

WINCHESTER, May 21.—Tom Wallace, slain at Irvine, was given a life sentence in circuit court here in 1915 for killing Huston Underwood. He was pardoned the same year.

CUMBERLAND BELL HOP PUTS MONEY AND FAITH ON ZEV

Though Zev's victory in the Kentucky Derby came as a surprise to most local racing fans, the winning horse had one champion here whose confidence and ability to pick a winner have added several hundred shekels to his private fortunes. The lucky man is not universally known as a race-track prophet; he is a colored bellhop at a local hotel.

Two months ago he picked out Zev as a winner and tried to place various private bets on him but no one here would take a chance on the animal whose name hardly ranked among the famous race horses. It is reported that he bought a few tickets at the Derby, however, and cleaned up about four hundred dollars.

COMMUNITY CHEST ENDORSED BY MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

The Community Chest drive was heartily endorsed at the meeting of the Middlesboro Ministerial association which was held at 10 o'clock this morning in the library building. Dr. Rutherford E. Douglas, new pastor of the Presbyterian church, was present and made an interesting talk. An informal discussion regarding the relation of the Sunday school to the church took place.

The splendid work done by the city through tis police in preventing a carnival to open here recently was commented upon by the ministers. The Rev. W. K. McClure was chairman of the meeting. Others present were: Rev. A. B. Reeves, Rev. E. F. Burnside, Commandant C. Cuthbert, Rev. E. T. Marcum and Dr. Douglas.

SEVENTEEN-YEAR LOCUSTS . . . APPEARING AT FERN LAKE

The wickedness of Pharoah and the story of the children of Israel is revived with the advent of the "seventeen year locusts" which are beginning to appear in countless numbers at Fern Lake. The name of the Egyptain king is uttered on every side by the insects.

Locusts of this variety only appear once in seventeen years. Where they go during the other sixteen years and why their visits in each locality are exactly seventeen years apart is a mystery, even to enthologists. There is a superstition that locusts have a "P" or a "W" on their wings, prophesying peace or war. No reports have been made as to the prediction of the locusts for the next seventeen years.

HARLAN GIRL TRIES TO COMMIT SUICIDE

Alice Wilson Seriously Hurt When She Jumps From Railroad Bridge Friday

HARLAN, May 21.—Miss Alice Wilson, 18, was seriously injured when she jumped from the L. and N. Railroad bridge here in an attempt to commit suicide Friday afternoon. The girl is said to have been despondent over losing her position at the Eagle Laundry and took this means of ending her troubles.

The water was not deep enough to drown her but the rocks in the bottom of the river bruised and cut her severely. She was rescued from the river by Roscoe Napier, an L. and N. employe and was taken to the Riverside Hospital.

URGE FOREIGN DELEGATE TO CHINESE BANDITS

State Department Says Only Hope, Unless American Put In Chinese Delegation, Is Direct Foreign Negotiation

PRISONERS MOVED BACK TO TOP OF STEEP MOUNTAIN

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Further negotiations between the Chinese government and bandit leaders holding several Americans captive "are futile" unless there is a foreign representation on the Chinese government delegation, in the opinion of American observers as reported today to the State Department. Dispatches suggested Roy Anderson, American, of long association with government officials and of bandit leaders be chosen to negotiate with the brigands and be provided with plenipotentiary powers. Otherwise, the state department summary of the situation says, "only hope of early relief for prisoners is by direct foreign negotiation." Tientsin dispatches today say bandits have removed their prisoners to the top of an almost impregnable mountain, which Chinese troops are besieging.

NEGRO PORTER AT PINEVILLE SHOT

Three White Men Held In Connection With Shooting, Probably Fatal to Victim

Arthur Gibson, colored passenger depot porter at Pineville, was shot, probably fatally, near the Pineville passenger station at 5 o'clock this morning. Tab Roark, Scott Jackson and Oliver Beach, white men, are held at the Pineville jail in connection with the shootnig. Beach is said to have fired the shots.

According to the reports the three men were walking along the tracks of the yards when they asked the negro where he was going. Gibson is said to have replied with an oath that it was none of their business. One of the trio drew a pistol and fired five shots two of which took effect in the porter's body.

The wounded man was rushed to the Pineville hospital where it was reported that he is not expected to live. Sheriff Martin Green arrested the three white men at Cary about 8 o'clock and took them to the Pineville jail. Tab Roark is the brother of G. L. Roark who was killed at Cary by negroes a few weeks ago. Preliminary hearing of the men is set for Wednesday.

A THOUGHT

For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?—Matt. 16:26.

After all, the most natural beauty in the world is honesty and moral truth.—Shaftesbury.

CLEAN UP STREETS BEFORE FRIDAY

So much has been said on the condition of Middlesboro streets that any more seems only nagging. But as long as our main thoroughfares continue in the state of filth in which they now are, every citizen should talk and nag and keep at it until the condition is remedied.

On Friday of this week Middlesboro is to have as visitors a delegation of one hundred of the most prominent business men of Cincinnati. These men will parade through the city and get, in this way, an impression of Middlesboro. There is no way in which the ruts and holes in the streets can be fixed by that time, though we can assure them that street construction is under way and that it is only a matter of time until Middlesboro has the smoothest and best streets in the state. But we can clean up our streets, Cumberland Avenue, Nineteenth and Twentieth Streets in particular, and put them in sanitary condition.

If we have no pride for ourselves and casual visitors, we should when such a delegation as this one from Cincinnati comes to town. It is outrageous that our streets on Cumberland Avenue are allowed to stay in the condition that they do. If the city will not keep them clean, in this emergency, it behooves the citizens to see that the work is done.

There is no doubt, though, but that the city should have such pressure brought to bear that it will keep the streets clean all of the time. The officials might do well to see that the prisoners who are paroled so readily from the city jail be kept in and earn their board and room by working on the streets. At least, the thought is worth considering.

SAFEGUARDS OF LIBERTY

The trouble with criticism of the Supreme Court by labor leaders and their demand for a law to enable Congress to override the court is that their position negatives the idea of government by constitutional chart. One of the chief merits of the Constitution is its permanence. Another is its definiteness. On these two qualities largely rest stability of government and the confidence of the ruled.

To leave interpretation of the laws to Congress would be to cast constitutional restrictions to the wind. To authorize that body to construe and fashion its own limitations would be to destroy the limfiltations imposed on it by the fathers. Under such plan the nation would be wholly at sea as to interpretation of rights under the Constitution. That document would thereby be reduced to a mere scrap of paper, and individuals could not be sure of their rights.

The Supreme Court stands on the guardian of the rights of laboring men, as well as those of all other men. Labor should not listen to leaders who advocate the overturn of the safeguards of liberty.—Washington Post.

MIDDLESBORO GOLF LINKS

The new golf links at Middlesboro, nestled in a pocket between the unfolding hills, is one of the most beautiful sights in the mountains, and an asset to Middlesboro worth as much as to city, perhaps, as the new hotel, in proportion to its cost. It matters little whether one is a golf enthusiast or not. He is fortunate if he is, and has much pleasure yet in store when he at last becomes a devotee. Even though he is not a golfer, a close observer of the times must recognize that the ancient game has come to stay, and is the only game that has succeeded in making inroads on the popularity of baseball. A statistician recently published figures running into millions of dollars, representing the investment in golf courses in America and more millions representing the annual expense of playing golf. The figures were astounding.

Making a bid for the tourist travel, as the Cumberland section is today, and recognizing that many of the tourists are golfing "hugs", the value of the Middlesboro links to the city and the entire section is beyond the power to compute. Tourists with golf bags in their cars are going to stop where there are golf links. Three visiting golf players were guests at the hotel there from Saturday morning to Monday morning, attracted by the beautiful new links, opened Saturday. They were just the first of the thousands of visitors the links will attract. The Southeastern Kentucky tournament will attract at least a hundred visitors for several days in July. An effort will be made to get the state tournament next year, which will attract several hundred for the greater part of a week. And so it goes.

And just as surely as the golf bug will bite you the first time you try it, just so surely will visitors, once they play the Middlesboro course, come back for more. It is beyond the imagination to conceive of a more beautiful course. The velvety greens and fair-ways are just a contrast of harmonies to the mountains that rise in the distance, ridge after ridge, as though folds of a giant curtain hung there by nature to delight the eye of those who are at play. And off in the distance can be heard the call of Bob White to his mate on her nest, the song of other birds, the merry ripple of a mountain stream, prompting the cross emotions of delight to the eye and a tricky hazard to the mind of the golfer, the bright flag, red and white, marking each "green," make indeed a colorful picture. Nature and a careful ground-keeper have joined forces to build one of the most beautiful and picturesque golf grounds. An afternoon there will comfort the troubled soul and leave one with a feeling of peace with all the world.—Pineville Sun.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

MURAL DECORATION

By Berton Braley

Peter Jones was peaceful, Peter Jones was mild.
He never did a single thing unusual or wild:
They "rode him" at his office, his good wife ruled his home.
No thought or dream rebellious had ever filled his dome;
The crowd forever jostled him, the rough guys trampled on him.
He meekly took the many woes that fortune wished upon him.
A spineless sort of character, who talked in meekest tones,
A humble individual was Mr. Peter Jones

The paperhanger came one day, and in the entrance hall
Of Peter Jone's domicile he pasted on the wall
Some brilliant yellow paper—the effect of which was such
That when our hero saw it he was pepped up pretty much.
He read his wife the riot act, he filled her heart with fear.
He bellowed in a raucous voice, "By Heck, I'm master here!"
And next day at the office, quite reversing all his ways,
He walked in on the manager and bluffed him for a raise!

That brilliant yellow paper made the other rooms seem dim.
So Peter ordered paper which had color light and vim.
With scarlet and with purple, with cardinal and pink
He papered all his domicile until it made you blink:
And as the paperhangers came and pasted up each roll,
Why, Peter grew more cocky and more arrogant of soul:
He's managing the business now, his meekness all has fled,
And you'll find his private office papered brilliantly in red!

LETTER FROM ALICE HAMILTON TO HER NEWLYWED SISTER, LESLIE PRESCOTT

I must say, Leslie that you seem to be hurting into something that is none of your business, but I am forgiving you because I think you have been away from home for such a short time that you don't realize you don't belong here anymore.

But at that I can't understand why you go and put it into mother's head that I am trying to flirt with Karl Whitney. She looks grave now every time he calls.

Are you afraid he will get a little comfort out of life after the way you have treated him? Of course I like Jack—pretty well—but I cannot understand why you gave up Karl Whitney for him.

Poor old Karl. He is taking it awfully hard too. I think you would be ashamed that you accused me of flirting with him when you know that the most he talks about when he is with me is you.

I wonder if you never knew that Karl was the most understanding man in the world; but of course you didn't. If you had, you would have married him.

And, besides I think he is the most loyal of all men. I am sorry for that too, for I don't want him to go on loving you all his life when there are so many other nice girls who would be glad to marry him.

Don't laugh at me. I am not thinking of marrying him—at least not right away. In fact, I have introduced him to a number of lovely young women lately, hoping that he would like some of them.

But he still is "hipped" on you. (That's slang, but there is nothing else that really describes his infatuation.)

I don't know why I am telling you this, for Lord knows you were quite conceited enough over Karl before you married Jack and it was just like you to be worried for fear I could comfort him a little.

You see I am mad, mad through and through, to think my own sister would accuse me of flirting with any man. And just for that, young woman, I shall tell you nothing about your pearls beads.

Of course, dear, I am not as angry as I pretend, but I do feel awfully sorry for Karl and I think he is one of the dearest men I have ever known. Some day I am sure you will think the same.

However, I don't want you to think I am trying to vamp him. I am not nearly as frivolous as you were and are. Indeed, Karl says that he has rarely known a girl as young as I who makes common sense so charming. Isn't that a nice compliment?

By the way, I think you were rather foolish to spend all the money mother gave you to fit up that apartment But then you always were extravagant. I'll bet the first quarrel you and Jack have will be over money.

You should never have married a poor man, Les. You are not built for it.

I have just received a letter from Betty Stokley. She wants me to come over and spend a month or two with her. I am trying to get dad to let me go. Wouldn't it be wonderful? Put in a good word for me, won't you sister?

Give my love to Jack and tell him that, with the exception of Karl Whitney, I'd rather have you married to him than any other man in the world.

I'll bet, sister mine, that you will neither give him this message nor show his this letter. ALICE

THE HILLS OF REST

Beyond the last horizon's rim
Beyond adventure's farthest quest,
Somewhere they rise, serene and dim,
The happy happy Hills of Rest.

Upon their sunlit slopes uplift,
The castles we have built in Spain,
While fair amid the summer drift,
Our faded gardens flower again.

Sweet hours we did not live go by
To soothing note, on scented wing
In golden lettered volumes lit
The songs we tried in vain to sing

There all are there: the days of dream
That build the inner lives of men:
The silent sacred years we deem
The might be, and the might have been.

Some evening when the sky is gold
I'll follow day into the west:
Nor pause, nor heed till I behold
The happy, happy Hills of Rest.

—Albert Bigelow Paine

TODAY'S RECIPES

SALMON CUTLETS WITH CUCUMBER SAUCE

Season two cups of cold, flaked salmon, either fresh or canned, with salt, pepper and onion juice to taste and one teaspoon lemon juice. Make a sauce of one cup of milk, one-third cup of flour and two tablespoons of butter, and add enough of this to the fish to hold it together

Spread in a pan to cool. Shape in the form of cutlets, one heaping tablespoon of the mixture being enough for one cutlet. Have ready some fine dried bread crumbs and one egg slightly beaten and diluted with one-fourth cup of cold water. Cover the cutlets with crumbs, thoroughly coat with the egg and again roll in crumbs. Brush off the crumbs which do not adhere and give the cutlets a final shaping, making them perfectly smooth with no showing of the fingers on them.

Fry in deep fat hot enough to brown a piece of bread in 40 counts or seconds. One minute will be long enough to fry the cutlets to the right shade. Fry as many pieces of macaroni, two inches long, as there are cutlets and place a piece of this in the small end of each cutlet.

Serve with peas or grated fresh cucumbers, seasoned with salt, pepper and vinegar. Garnish with parsley or watercress pick of the army.

Their tradition is that they never surrender. They are one of the oldest organizations in Greece at that. They are a smart-looking outfit compare them with any soldiers you please

Their uniform, after a first slight shock to the western eye, is handsome. But for their skin-tight breeches they would not be unlike the Scotch highlanders, their navy-blue and brass buttoned tunic, and kilties, and blood-red skull-cap, worn at a rakish angle, being exceedingly snappy.

These are the men who first called their leader "Black Pepper." And around these men are the army upon whom Greece pins her hope of the future—in case a cog slips and peace is not signed at Lausanne—or in the event Greece and Turkey, at some not distant time, fight a return date.

DETROIT MILLIONAIRE IN RACE AGAIN THIS YEAR

INDIANAPOLIS MAY 21—Joe Boyer Detroit automobile racer of Detroit is a millionaire—

But he sticks to the track

Joe has been a familiar figure in Indianapolis Memorial Day races for several years In 1921 he gave Ralph DePalma the battle of his life

And he's coming back again this year He'll jog along the course in a Frontenac Special

Boyer first jumped into prominence as a speed demon when he won the 500 mile event in Cincinnati in 1919 copping the grand prize of six cents

Wasn't much of a reward for a man who risked his life just to thrill folks but here's how it happened

The drivers agreed to compete for the gate receipts When the proceeds were assembled there wasn't even a thin dime for Joe He had to be satisfied with his six cents The man who came in second got three cents

Boyer has installed a radio receiving set on his machine so his pit can keep in touch with him Last year an attempt was made to utilize wireless in this way The experiment was not successful

Joe hopes for better luck

BANKS ON "MAGIC" GAS IN SPEED CROWN BATTLE

INDIANAPOLIS, May 21—Magic fuel!

Count Zborowski's gasoline must be chock full of presto change qualities

Else why would he pack 250 gallons of the stuff with him all the way from Europe?

The count, who happens to be an American citizen, but just now a resident of Higham, Canterbury England uses his precious 'elixir of speed in the French Bugatti he will drive in the international motor classic here Memorial Day

But he declines to reveal his recipe It's a concoction all his own, he explains Wiseacres have it, though that alcohol is its base

Anyway 'tis reported around the track the count's gas is far more powerful than the high test grade American speed kings pour into their tanks

Fearing the Polish nobleman and wealthy sportsman has discovered some hitherto unknown fountain of speed other drivers are said to be working frantically to compound an even more potent solution

Zborowski had to pay 15 cents duty on every gallon before he could get by the customs inspectors with his magic stuff

Questions

ONE—Is it possible for a pitcher to be shifted to some other position and then be recalled as a pitcher?

TWO—If the umpire calls a balk on the pitcher as the pitcher delivers the ball, which the batter hits for a home run what happens

THREE—If a runner going over from second to third be retired at that base because the shortstop obstructed him just enough to cause the out, what is the ruling?

FOUR—When a fielder hits a batted ball with a thrown glove what is the ruling

FIVE—Is there any difference if he partially stops a thrown ball with his glove which he has detached from his person

Answers

ONE—A player can be used at any position provided he remains in the game

TWO—The moment the umpire calls a balk the ball becomes dead making no play possible and rendering void the home run that was hit

THREE—The runner is entitled to advance to the base to which he was going if the fielder obstructed his way and prevented him from making the base

FOUR—When a fielder hits a batted ball with his glove the runner or runners shall be entitled to three bases

FIVE—If it is a thrown ball the runner or runners shall be entitled to only two bases

HANSON CAR LATEST CAR SOLD BY LOCAL AGENCIES

The Hanson car the latest addition to the Pine Belt automotive vehicles is being handled by W A Gossett and Empire Motor Co and they have been delighted with the way the cars are selling

The car is a product of Nineteenth street Detroit Michigan and is designed and sells for a moderate price The firm has at the same time had the agency for the Gray Motor Maxwell and Chalmers cars

The old stone building on Nineteenth street has been thoroughly remodeled and will be used for the exclusive display room of the cars

WHERE THE DOLLAR GOES EXPLAINED BY UNCLE SAM

How Uncle Sam splits up each dollar that you drop perhaps grudgingly into the pockets of his striped jeans and spends it for that and that has been made public here officially

According to Assistant secretary of the Treasury Irwin Chilcott the experts of his department have determined just how each dollar that is put into the treasury in the form of taxes or from other sources is divided among the Federal activities Figuratively speaking, the government dollar has been cut into segments on the basis of last year's expenditures

For instance on or about March 15 when you were scratching your head over your income tax statement and were scratching the bottom of your savings fund still harder to pay the first installment did you realize that 10 cents out of each dollar you paid would go for care of the veterans of the World War?

Did you know that 24 cents would go as the government's contribution to road building or that 26 cents of each dollar would be paid back to the people as interest on the government debt

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

Not but Japan is getting any further on the kidnaping by Chinese bandits of about two dozen foreigners who were traveling north on the ultra fast Shanghai Peking express train and are still held to ransom in the wilds of Shantung

Japan got possession of Shantung in the confusion of the World War

The war over the powers especially the United States said the province ought to be returned to the Chinese

Japan agreed the Chinese government wouldn't get it even if she did this that a lot of outlaws would grab it in short

The powers said she ought to do it anyway and Japan complied

Now the bandits have given them an example of what they've got to expect

Bandits' Terms Met

The brigands captives include 10 or 12 Americans

Among them was Miss Lucy Aldrich John D Rockefeller Jr's sister in law but she got away

The Pekin government is willing to pay any ransom and agree to any terms the bandits name so presumably the prisoners will be freed soon but it's been proved Chinese travels far from safe

Most of the bigger countries including this one have a few troops handy but China the size of China is as big as the United States and three or four times as populous isn't easy to police

Neither is it likely soldiers could get their prisoners away from the bandits alive

Cross With France

England is annoyed with France for rejecting Germany's Ruhr proposition without consulting her

She says the offer was to her as well as to France and she was entitled to a voice At the same time she told Germany the proposal wasn't satisfactory anyway but advises her to try again

France has found Dr Gustav Krupp Von Bohlen head of the Krupp industries guilty of anti French activity in the Ruhr fined him 100 million marks which is a trifle for him and sent him to prison for 10 years which is more serious

Fighting In Brazil

South American cables tell of victories against the government by rebels in southern Brazil The country is a confederation but pretty loose and state rebellions are quite common The matter is extra serious now because North American packing companies properties worth 10 millions are involved

Soviet Official Slain

M Vorovsky Russian representative in Italy who was in Lausanne to look after his country's interest at the conference over Dardenelles and Turkey has been fatally shot by Maurice Conradi a Conradi shot him as they sat in the restaurant of the Lausanne hotel

The Russians very angrily say the Swiss authorities didn't try hard enough to protect Vorovsky

Three Mile Limit

Like the United States Russia wants to extend her limit of authority over the ocean from three to twelve miles beyond her shores

It isn't liquor smuggling she's trying to prevent but fishing rights she wants to protect

England insists on the three mile limit and has sent a warship to defend her fishing crafts from Russian interference She has sent an ultimatum to Moscow no threatening war but a break in commercial relations

Price of Sugar

The federal court of appeals in New York has refused the injunction asked by the government against speculation in raw sugar futures

This was in connection with the suit by which the government hoped to force sugar prices down Its lawyer said every 1 cent a pound rise costs the people seven millions a year

Facts will be an appeal to the United States Supreme Court

Doctors Know Best

Another New York federal judge has knocked out the part of the Volstead law which prevented druggists from prescribing more than a pint of intoxicants every ten days for any patient

The court contention is that the doctors know best

This decision will be appealed too

Three new sport model Buicks were received by the Cutron garage Saturday. These are the first cars of this model that have ever been received in Middlesboro and they have attracted so notice. NEW TOURING CAR BUS OPERATES ON PINEVILLE LINE

J. F. Wilcox has recently bought a new touring car style bus which he is operating on the Pineville line. Three trips are made to Pineville daily and two are made to Edgewood. Trips were made to Greasy creek for a while but these have been discontinued. .

GARAGE GAS AND GOSSIP

Estimating Middlesboro's population at 10,000 and the number of cars owned as 600, every sixteenth person is a car owner.

The Community Chest advertising signs have become very much attached to automobiles

The Motch Motor comnany has received estimates of the cost of the proposed garage building.

Mechano, Studebaker advertiser here this week, claims he can turn to stone which obviously a hard proposition.

Sowehow we haven't heard much complaining about bad streets since the improvement program has been started. Some residents are even saying that the streets in front of their property do not need repairing.

It is reported that an engine has been perfected which will run a car fifty miles on two and one-half cents' worth of gas. No, Ford did not originate the report.

With cars coming in so many shades this spring a woman can select one to match her new dress.

URGES ROADS TO ATTRACT TOURISTS

A real estate dealer of Miami, Fla., who recently stopped for a few hours in Middlesboro declared that he could annually direct five thousand tourists through this city if we had good roads here anv in other places of this section. The natural scenery and the historical places make it the favorite section of the country for tourists, he stated.

Most tourists now go through Virginia and the Carolinas in making the trip from southern to northern points and a number of these would come through this section if road conditions were favorable. The other routes are longer and the scenic and historic attractions are not present in other sections.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW STARTS TONIGHT

Mechano, the Miracle Man to Bé Attraction at Middlesboro Motor Co. This Week

Plans for the big automobile show of the Middlesboro Motor company are complete and the doors will be open tonight at 7 o'clock. The show will continue each evening this week, closing Saturday night. ?Mechano?, versatile wizard, will furnish the entertainment.

The Middlesboro Motor company has been working night and day to get the show ready in time. It will be held in their big garage. A sign over the door reads "Everybody Welcome Free". The place has been appropriately decorated for the occasion and a large stage platform has been erected for the entertainment to be given each night with changes of program through the week. The sales room and window have a beautiful display with a new Six Studebaker sedan which is one of the highest priced cars manufactured by the Studebaker company. It will be given away free to the person causing Mechano to smile while on exhibition.

Auto tires and accessories will also be on display and a few of our leading merchants will also probably take part in the exhibition. It is believed that crowds will come from miles to the show, as it has been well advertised at Cumberland Gap, Pineville, Corbin and other towns. Auto dealers from the last named city will be here Tuesday night.

In addition to his various human doll and other stunts, mechano will answer all questions asked him. There must be placed in a box provided for the purpose. Answers to the questions will appear in the Daily News of the following day.

FORDS STILL HARD TO OBTAIN BY LOCAL DEALER

Henry is still lying down on his job so far as providing cars for the local agency is concerned. Only six cars have been received by the Motch motor company this month and, it is said, no more will be allotted before June. Orders for Fords are increasing, however, the inability of the mammoth factories being the only reason more them are not sold here

Ford has recently acquired about $2,000,000 worth of property in St. Paul and it is thought that he intends to increase production by erecting new factiries. Deliveries for parts are more prompt now than they were several months ago. The local Ford agency has received several $500 and $1000 shipments of parts since they received the big $10,000 lot a few weeks ago.

HEALTHY REVIVAL EXPORT BUSINESS

Federal Fuel Distributor Reports Conditions Favorable To Demand for Several Months

In an article on the overseas coal export situation, which appeared in "Commerce Reports" of March 26, 1923, the effect of the Ruhr situation on our export coal trade was discussed at some length.

Following that date, foreign inquiries and offers for our coal decreased somewhat, with perhaps a greater demand for coke than for coal.

The decrease is attributed partly to the expectations of an early settlement of the Ruhr situation, partly to the increase in prices of our coal at tidewater together with the rise in ocean freight rates. Unwillingness on the part of our exporters to give the credit asked for by foreign buyers had undoubtedly prevented a number of sales.

However, additional charters are being reported every day as closed and the prevalent feeling seems to be that, with a decline in ocean freight rates, as shown in the last week of April and a decrease in prices of coal from the high level of March, our coal exporters will be able to secure considerable foreign business, at least for the next few months. In fact, some of the contracts already closed cover deliveries over from four to six months and even longer.

The opinion of the Federal Fuel authorities is further strengthened by statements from leading coal exporters.

distribution used by the Federal government in the distribution of its road fund to the various states of the Union.

"The remaining twenty-five per cent of the bond issue would constitute a revolving fund, to be spent by the commissions at such points and in such counties as in the judgment of the commission may be necessary to connect up and complete the system. I would further provide that if under the plan of distribution suggested, any county's allotment should be greater than necessary to complete the construction of primary roads in that county, the excess shall be come a part of the revolving fund, to be used in other parts of the state as in the judgment of the commission may be necessary to complete the commission system. When a bond issue so safeguarded is submitted to the people, I firmly believe it will receive their overwhelming approval, and with its expenditures in the hands of such a splendid commission as I propose, we will lift Kentucky out of the mud and start her on a march toward the glorious destiny which surely awaits her.

Wants Adequate Schools

"The public school system of a state may be either its crowning glory or its greatest reproach. In this state, where the public school is the Alma Mater of ninety per cent of its citizens, one of the first thoughts of an enlightened government should be its common school system. Those who framed the present Constitution, and the people in adopting that instrument, recognized the fact that the education of the masses is the cornerstone of a free government, and by section 183 of that instrument the General Assembly is commanded, by appropriate legislation to provide for an efficient system of common schools throughout the state. No thoughtful man in Kentucky believes that the lawmaking department of the state government has ever fully measured up to the sacred duty imposed upon it by section 183 of the Constitution, and, if I am elected governor, it shall be my constant aim in every reasonable way to secure to the children of the rural sections of Kentucky an equal educational opportunity with those who live in our cities and towns. I favor supporting to the fullest extent, consistent with the state's ability to pay, our Normal schools for the training of teachers and our state university, to the end that Kentucky's school system, from the common schools to the university, may be brought up to the standard contemplated by the framers of the Constitution.

"Inasmuch, however, as the common schools affect every home and every citizen in the state, I believe they should be kept as close to the people as possible, consistent with efficient service and for this reason I have always opposed and will continue to oppose taking from the people the right to select their state superintendent of instruction by popular vote, but I do favor the creation of a non-partisan, state board of education, appointed by the Governor with the State Superintendent as an ex-officio member, to take the place of the present state board of education, two member of which the secretary of state and the attorney general—can give but little time or thought to the work of the board.

Revise Tax System

"An ever present problem in this state is to care for its expanding needs without laying too heavy a burden up on the taxpayers. I am opposed to any increase in taxation but the man who promises to properly run the state government on less revenue than is now available is neither honest with himself nor with the people, for it cannot be done. The people, however, are entitled to have the money raised by taxation intelligently and honestly spent and to have every species of property subject to taxation so assessed as to make all taxable property in every section of the state bear its just proportion of the expenses of government.

"While the coal interests of the state must be required to pay their just proportion of the ordinary taxes of the state, this great industry, which is attracting millions of taxable wealth to our state and which is transforming a wilderness into a great industrial community, furnishing employment to thousands of our citizens and a market for our agricultural products, must not be stifled nor driven from the markets of the world by either a tonnage or other species of production tax, which a short sighted and selfish policy is leading some of our people to demand.

"Many people in Kentucky are opposed to the pari-mutuel system of betting on the race tracks, and believe that the passage of a law making such betting illegal will abolish gambling on race tracks. I agree with my opponent, Professor Colvin, who in his opening speech said, 'I do not deceive myself into believing that the repeal of the pari-mutuel law will abolish gambling.' However the question is a moral rather than a political one, and may be well left with the sober judgment of the voters of the state, to be expressed through their chosen representatives in the General Assembly, and, if I should be elected governor and the General Assembly should pass a law repealing the pari-mutuel law, I will promptly approve it.

"The taxable wealth of the state finds its basic support in the agricultural, industrial and mineral resources of that Commonwealth. As one sure means of aiding in the solution of our vexing problem of taxation, I propose to bring about the development of new mineral wealth in Kentucky.

Develop Mineral Resources

"To do this it will be necessary to have a reorganization of the Kentucky Geological Survey, with adequate finances for the work which is necessary to be done. This department of the State Government is in reality a bureau of scientific investigation and education for the public at large. In a state like Kentucky, which stands first in oil production in the entire Appalachian region and fourth in coal production in thenation, with the surface but little more than scratched; the possibilities of future industrial and mining greatness are almost unlimited. Kentucky has about 25 basic and industrially important minerals, many of which have never been definitely located or described. Only one-half of our state is at present base mapped topographically. In this great unmapped region coal, asphalt, oil, iron ore, fluor spar and other minerals of recognized value now lies unworked and but little known. This dormant mineral wealth, mostly located in those counties which now pay less into the state treasury than they receive from it. When developed will convert these counties into regions of abundant and lasting prosperity. These counties may be made not only self-sustaining, but largely contributory to the support of the state treasury and the prosperity of the Commonwealth generally. This has been done in other states and can be done in Kentucky. The Kentucky Geological Survey has never had adequate finances with which to properly function, and, when furnished with the means of making these mineral resources investigations and topographic base maps, can bring to light the latent resources and taxable values of the state.

"On these issues I submit my case to the Republicans of Kentucky, who are competent to select their own candidates for public office without the help of the Democratic press of Louisville or of Haley, the Democratic boss. If I am nominated, on these issues and on the record of constructive achievements of the present administration, I can be elected. I am the candidate of no boss nor set of bosses, and when I am governor I will not be governor of any boss nor set of bosses, but I will conduct that great office as I have conducted the office of Attorney General for the good of all Kentucky."

OLD VILLAGE, SEVENTY-SIX INTERESTING TO SIGHT-SEERS

By Associated Press.

ALBANY Ky., May 17.—The village of Seventy-Six, located in Clinton county, six miles north of Albany, takes its name from the Seventy Six Falls, a beautiful and rugged waterfall in It is said that the first settlers gave this name to the falls because they were seventy-six feet high, although the rock below the falls has been worn away by the waters pouring on it until the falls are now said to be about 90 feet high.

The village was settled more than 100 years ago, by a family named Semple or Samples, probably from Virginia, and other families. The elder Semple built a water mill which got power from a smaller falls just above the main falls. The old grist mill though burned and rebuilt two or three times, is still in operation, and at one time bofer the advent of roller flouring mills in this county, was the principal corn, flour and lumber mill for half the county.

A considerable acreage above the falls was laid out in town lots and at one time there was two or three stores and perhaps a dozen residences in the village. The Seventy Six Baptist Church, the second oldest church in Clinton county was established in 1815. Most of the village has disappeared. The church is now located a mile to the west of the falls, but many people visit the falls in summer for picnics and sight-seeing.
